Legendary Sci-Fi, Horror and Monster Movies (1895-1969)

Over a decade in the making, this annotated chronological listing is a living document that we hope will grow on you as you enjoy it. This compilation began as an adjunct to a University course on the history of rocketry stressing the importance of '50s science-fiction movies for public awareness and cultural acceptance of space travel and exploration. Among the genre of common motion picture themes that include Action, Adventure, Animation, Biography, Comedy, Crime, Documentary, Drama, Educational, Family, Fantasy, Film Noir, History, Horror, Monster, Murder-Mystery, Mystery, Romance, Sci-Fi, Thriller, TV, War and Westerns, this listing only includes those indicated above in red. Give us a spaceship, mad scientist (preferably in a lab coat or laboratory setting), alien, bat, creature, monster, shape-shifter, vampire, zombie or some sense of horror, the supernatural or time-travel and you're IN! Fantasy and thriller films were only included when an element of Horror, Monsters, the Supernatural or Sci-Fi was present. Comments and annotations are largely edited from the Internet Movie Database (www.imdb.com), Letterbox (www.letterboxd.com), the Movie Database (www.tmdb.com), library research and personal impressions from many hours of completely wasted time viewing the movies.
